1. Admission Policy

Kanazawa University Admission Policy

(1) Kanazawa University Charter and Educational Philosophy

Kanazawa University’s origins can be traced back to 1862, when the Hikoso Vaccination Center was founded in Kaga Domain. In 1949, various predecessor schools including the former Fourth Higher School were integrated to form Kanazawa University.

Kanazawa University has now clarified its vision in the Kanazawa University Charter as an institution with more than 150 years of education, research and social contributions. This Kanazawa University Charter starts by declaring the path along which the university as a whole should progress.

“Kanazawa University has the goal of becoming “a research university dedicated to education, while opening up its doors to both local and global society.” With this objective, the university will work on reform, in the belief that its activities will contribute to the opening up of a new 21st century era, the promotion of world peace and the sustainable development of humankind. Kanazawa University hereby establishes its charter based on the above ideology and objectives.”

The educational philosophy stated in this charter can be summed up as follows.

“Kanazawa University shall respect the individuality of students as well as their right to learn, positioning self-study as the basis of education. The university will enhance organized faculty development activities geared towards educational reform in order to foster the ability to acquire specialized knowledge and the ability to pursue problems. Furthermore, the university will cultivate human resources who are adaptable to international society, of high moral character, and rich in humanity.”

(2) The Kanazawa University “Global” Standard (KUGS) and Desired Human Resources

In order to give more concrete shape to the University Charter as a human resources development policy suited to the current situation, which calls for the further internationalization of education and the development of global human resources, Kanazawa University has established the Kanazawa University “Global” Standard. This is the university’s overall admission policy, and the source of the admission policy of each faculty and learning area.

Excerpt from the Kanazawa University “Global” Standard (KUGS)

“Kanazawa University fosters human resources as individuals with the ability, physical stamina and character to become core leaders in a knowledge-based society and address difficulties in their workplaces fearlessly, fulfilling the personal missions of their positions in global society positively as members of the human race.”

In other words, Kanazawa University admits students who not only show the qualities and abilities mentioned in the KUGS as certain potential at least, but also have the strong will and aspiration to become this kind of human resource.

(3) Kanazawa University and the Evaluation of Independence

Kanazawa University values an “independent scholastic attitude and the ability to work with a diverse range of people.”

Admissions Policy for the School of International Studies

At the School of International Studies, we aim to develop our students’ intellectual ability and empathy, both of which are required to navigate a multi-ethnic, multi-religious and multi-cultural society, as well as the foreign language skills necessary for communication in an international setting. Our students are expected to engage in international exchange activities in Japan and to pursue careers in such fields as government agencies in foreign affairs, foreign aid organizations, international organizations, NPOs, NGOs operating overseas, multinational corporations, and Japanese language education and education relating to Japanese current affairs.

The School of International Studies offers five courses: Global Studies, Japanese Studies, Asian Studies, American-British Studies, and European Studies. In the Global Studies and American-British Studies courses an English Program is provided: all classes are held in English. Each student selects one of these courses to pursue from their second year. Course selection is based on the student’s own request, aptitude, academic achievement, etc.

< Desired Candidates >

• People who are keenly interested in the various issues facing our multi-ethnic, globalized world.
• People who are inquisitive enough to question the identity of their own culture.
• People who spare no effort in improving their practical foreign language skills, including English.
• People who possess inquiring minds and the communication skills necessary to reach mutual understanding and agreement on various issues that arise in international settings.
• People who aim to engage in international activities in the future.
• People who want to teach Japanese language to foreigners.

< Basic policy for selection >

Applicants for Pattern A are expected to read English and Japanese materials, and answer questions on them in Japanese in the written examination. This is in order to evaluate applicants’ language proficiency, social and cultural knowledge, and the ability to think logically. In the interview, they are expected to show basic knowledge, communication skills in Japanese and motivation for study. In making the selection, the results of these written and oral examinations, as well as the applicants’ scores in Examination for Japanese University (EJU) and English proficiency examinations, will be evaluated comprehensively.

Applicants for Pattern B are expected to read English materials and to answer questions on them in English. This is in order to evaluate applicants’ language proficiency, social and cultural knowledge, and ability to think logically. In the interview, they are expected to show basic knowledge, communication skills in English, and motivation for study. In making the selection, the results of these written and oral examinations, as well as the applicants’ scores in EJU and English proficiency examinations, will be evaluated comprehensively.

< Desirable Subjects Leading to Admission >

At the School of International Studies, we aim to send out truly international graduates who understand the globalized world from various points of view and who can “coexist flexibly” with other cultures. In order to achieve this goal, we expect candidates to study with eagerness such subjects as English, politics, economics, world history, geography, etc., before entering our university, and to acquire sufficient knowledge in these fields. In addition, in order to be a true internationally-minded person, learning about the history and culture of one’s own country is indispensable. For self-funded international students who intend to participate in the English program after enrollment, Japanese proficiency is not required. Also, students are expected to have a willingness to communicate actively with foreigners at home and abroad. In addition, depending on applicants’ research themes after admission, it will be necessary to study various subjects related to global issues.

In Introduction to Data Science, required for all students and offered immediately after enrollment, students will connect their laptops to the network to learn how to use the information network securely and how to use the necessary software for each school.

Outside of special circumstances, please prepare a laptop by the time you enter the university.
