1. Admission Policy

Kanazawa University Admission Policy

(1) Kanazawa University Charter and Educational Philosophy

Kanazawa University's origins can be traced back to 1862, when the Hikoso Vaccination Center was founded in Kaga Domain. In 1949, various predecessor schools including the former Fourth Higher School were integrated to form Kanazawa University.

Kanazawa University has now clarified its vision in the Kanazawa University Charter as an institution with more than 150 years of education, research and social contributions. This Kanazawa University Charter starts by declaring the path along which the university as a whole should progress.

"Kanazawa University has the goal of becoming "a research university dedicated to education, while opening up its doors to both local and global society." With this objective, the university will work on reform, in the belief that its activities will contribute to the opening up of a new 21st century era, the promotion of world peace and the sustainable development of humankind. Kanazawa University hereby establishes its charter based on the above ideology and objectives."

The educational philosophy stated in this charter can be summed up as follows.

"Kanazawa University shall respect the individuality of students as well as their right to learn, positioning self-study as the basis of education. The university will enhance organized faculty development activities geared towards educational reform in order to foster the ability to acquire specialized knowledge and the ability to pursue problems. Furthermore, the university will cultivate human resources who are adaptable to international society, of high moral character and rich in humanity."

(2) The Kanazawa University "Global" Standard (KUGS) and Desired Human Resources

In order to give more concrete shape to the University Charter as a human resources development policy suited to the current situation, which calls for the further internationalization of education and the development of global human resources, Kanazawa University has established the Kanazawa University "Global" Standard. This is the university's overall admission policy, and the source of the admission policy of each faculty and learning area.

Excerpt from the Kanazawa University "Global" Standard (KUGS)

"Kanazawa University fosters human resources as individuals with the ability, physical stamina and character to become core leaders in a knowledge-based society and address difficulties in their workplaces fearlessly, fulfilling the personal missions of their positions in global society positively as members of the human race."

In other words, Kanazawa University admits students who not only show the qualities and abilities mentioned in the KUGS as certain potential at least, but also have the strong will and aspiration to become this kind of human resource.

(3) Kanazawa University and the Evaluation of Independence

Kanazawa University values an "independent scholastic attitude and the ability to work with a diverse range of people."

Admissions Policy for the School for the Future of Innovation in Society (College of Philosophy in Interdisciplinary Sciences)

Society is transforming in many ways and conventional knowledge, systems and methods are becoming insufficient for maintaining and strengthening national power. In a future society exposed to diverse threats, human resources who will be "cutting-edge leaders of social change" will be vital. To this end, the School for the Future of Innovation in Society fosters people who strive continually for self-improvement and have a desire to lead the way in personal, scientific and social reform. To meet the demands of society, we aim to foster "social reform human resources" within the humanities, social science and natural science fields to lead the creation of unexplored innovation in each field through the fusion of knowledge and joint development with others.

Desired Candidates

The School for the Future of Innovation in Society seeks applicants with the following ambitions.
